I wish to voice my opinion in this matter.

It is not fair that a company with the practices that Microsoft has been proven to be engaged in can continue to go on as if no crime has been committed--or eve that a little crime has been committed.

As a web developer, I see the effects of their 900 pound guerilla tactics everyday--making my job harder, unnecessarily.

Microsoft ought to be broken up into three divisions:

- Operating System (sans browser)
- Business Software (Office, Money, IIS)
- Entertainment software (Browser, Games, Media Player)
